Staying Motivated

1. Keep it positive: Positive thoughts lead to positive actions. Take control of how you think, how you feel, how you act. Positivity will help you make the choices that lead to accomplishment.
2. Approach tasks in new ways. Sometimes just getting started might be a problem. A different approach might give you a new perspective and more energy.
3. Break goals into manageable tasks: One important key to your success will be your ability to break down your goals into short-term and smaller single tasks. Keep things manageable.
4. Get organized: make sure your work area is uncluttered so your mind can be organized. A calm environment gives you a better chance of being more efficient and productive.
5. Tackle procrastination head on: Don't make excuses or waste time rationalizing why you haven't started. Instead, try to uncover the real reason for the delay and get to work immediately. The best way to begin something is "just to begin."
6. Seize the power of deadlines: Setting a time limit for an activity will enable you to assemble your resources and materials toward accomplishing things you might not otherwise get done.
