What is my child's assigned school?

Every child in Broward County is assigned a District school based on his or her home address. To identify your child's assigned school, visit browardschools.com/school-locator.

Can my child attend any school in Broward County?

By state law, students may apply to attend any public school in Florida that has not reached capacity, regardless of their home address. To determine schools with available seats, BCPS reviews enrollment for all District schools annually to identify current available seats and projected students.

Parents may request a school that has available seats by completing a School Choice application during an open application window.

School Choice applications are awarded using a computerized random selection process. If more seats at a school become available during the School Choice process, additional selections from the applicant pool are made. Selection dates are listed to the right.

There is no guarantee your child's School Choice application will be granted; however, your child may always attend his or her assigned school.
